2) Please explain in maximum 10 lines, why is it important for a company to monitor its suppliers' CSR (Corporate Social Responsibility) performance?

A company must monitor its suppliers as it is the responsibility of the suppliers to meet the needs and wants of the company and act accordingly to provide the necessity. The company's financial situation may change drastically, make profit or loss. A company has the right to monitor its suppliers, making sure the suppliers are highly satisfactory, or mediocre, the company can change suppliers with time if it is not satisfied with a particular product, e.g if the product's quality is not satisfying or sometimes might be defective due to low-quality manufacturers, or not meeting the requirements of the company. Therefore, the company must monitor the adequate suppliers, on a weekly, or monthly basis so that the suppliers performance is that of the company's requisites. The company has an up-to-date of its suppliers and can maintain balance and increase further its performance in the long run.
